

OfS Sexual misconduct survey: Content of the questionnaire

We are developing a survey to understand how widespread sexual misconduct in the higher education sector is and learn more about the context in which incidents occur.

The pilot is surveying a broad cross-section of higher education students at a selection of English universities. Fieldwork takes place in autumn 2023.

This document contains the explanatory text, questions and answer options used for the questionnaire in the pilot.

Find out more about our survey of sexual misconduct

Thank you for your interest in this survey, which is about sexual misconduct.

The aim of this survey is to understand whether university students have experienced either sexual harassment and/or sexual violence since they became a student, either within or outside a university setting. Your answers will help us to understand the incidence of sexual misconduct in Higher Education and help universities develop tools to tackle this serious issue. We recognise that sexual misconduct is a sensitive subject and really appreciate your input.

Your voice is extremely important and we want you to feel comfortable in answering these questions both freely and honestly. Please remember that:

- There are no right or wrong answers, but it is important that you answer the questions honestly.
- All of your answers will remain completely confidential in accordance with the Market Research Society (MRS) Code of Conduct and the EU General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR).
- If you would prefer not to answer a particular question, you can select “Prefer not to say”.
- If you would like to opt out or remove your responses at a later date, simply let us know by emailing ofs_smsurvey@iffresearch.com.
- If you would prefer to answer the questions in stages, you can pause at any time. Simply click on the link in your invitation email to return to the last question you answered.

The survey will take approximately 15 minutes to complete and is being conducted by IFF Research on behalf of The Office for Students (OfS), the independent regulator of higher education in England. This survey has been designed in consultation with experts and following existing best practice from similar surveys internationally. If you have any further questions about the survey, please contact ofs_smsurvey@iffresearch.com or call IFF Research free on 0800 0147 350. You can find the privacy policy for this research here: Privacy notice for the sexual misconduct pilot survey, and IFF’s privacy notice here: Privacy policy | IFF Research.

The survey will start by asking about behaviours related to sexual harassment, excluding those involving physical contact. The latter is covered in the second half of the survey, alongside detailed descriptions of such behaviours. This is just to ensure accuracy in our measure of prevalence – all answers will be reported in aggregate form and no individual students will be identifiable in the reporting outputs.

At the end of the survey, you will also be given an opportunity to answer some questions on relationships between students and university staff members. We would appreciate it if you could take the time to complete this section as well.

Some of the language used in this survey is explicit and some people may find it uncomfortable. But it is important that we ask questions in this way so that you are clear what we mean.

Such questions are clearly marked with content warnings throughout and can be skipped entirely if preferred.

All answers will be reported in aggregate form and no individual students will be identifiable in the reporting outputs.

Have questions? Further information about the research can be found at sexualmisconductsurvey.com and on the OfS website.

ask all

Since being a student, has anyone ever done the following things to you when you did not want them to?

This could have been anywhere, not just at university, and includes when you were asleep or affected by alcohol or drugs. This might have been as a result of the individual(s):

- Telling lies, threatening to end a relationship or to spread rumours about you, making promises you knew were untrue, or continually verbally pressuring you.
- Showing annoyance, criticising your sexuality or attractiveness, getting angry but not using physical force.

- Taking advantage of you when you were affected by alcohol or drugs.
- Threatening to physically harm you or someone close to you.
- Using force, for example holding you down with their body weight, pinning your arms, or having a weapon.
- Engaging in the behaviour without any indication from you that such behaviour was welcome.

Why is this information needed? This level of detail is important to ensure people are aware of the range of different contexts where misconduct happens so we can understand the extent of the problem. All data will remain confidential, be stored securely and no individuals will be identifiable in the reporting outputs.
